Dare Greatly

The great hockey player Wayne Gretzky wisely counseled that "You will miss one-hundred percent of the shots you don't take." Of course the -ip side of this is that you will miss a lot of the shots you do take, though it is bound to be less than one-hundred percent. Wise men and women have always advised us to take calculated risks, and remind us that when nothing is ventured, nothing is gained. The wise man who penned Ecclesiastes advised us to "Give a portion to seven, or even to eight, for you know not what disaster may happen on earth." (Ecclesiastes 11:2) This seems to be suggesting that we diversify, i.e., to not put all our eggs in one basket, but rather to invest a bit in seven or even eight different ventures. This is certainly good advice when it comes to our 'nances, but what about our spiritual treasures? Should we treat our souls, or our salvation as an investor thinking about where to put our money? De'nitely not, for in the realm of spirit, you have to be "all in." God doesn't want halfhearted followers, so in deciding where to put your spiritual wealth, we should indeed put all of our eggs in one basket.

— Christopher Simon

"For what will it provt a man if he gains the whole world and forfeits his soul? Or what shall a man give in return for his soul?"

Matthew 16:26
